

(Invited) Printed electronic textile and its medical applications

Yang Wei

Nottingham Trent University, UK

Electronic textiles (e-textiles) is a fast growing area with huge market potential in many applications (e.g. sports/fitness, healthcare/medical and fashion). This talk focuses on the electronic textiles and their applications on medical applications. It covers overview of technologies, several case studies, advances of the current research and challenges for the future work.