

NEUTRINO 2016

SOUTH KENSINGTON, LONDON

XXVII INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE ON NEUTRINO PHYSICS AND ASTROPHYSICS

4–9 JULY 2016

The XXVII International Conference on Neutrino Physics and Astrophysics (Neutrino 2016) will be held in London from Monday 4 July to Saturday 9 July 2016.

The International Conference on Neutrino Physics and Astrophysics is held every second year. Its primary purpose is to review the status of the fields of neutrino physics and the impact of neutrino physics on astronomy and cosmology and the vision for the development of these fields. The conference consists of invited, plenary talks and poster sessions.

Exhibition

A one-day exhibition will be held alongside the conference on Monday 4 July 2016. We expect more than 400 conference participants to attend the exhibition, including academics, researchers and students.

The exhibition will also be open to non-conference participants, enabling a broader community of potential visitors. Attendance at the exhibition will be free of charge and we expect that, due to the central location of the event, there will be footfall of day visitors in addition to the conference delegates.

Why exhibit?

- Grow your customer base and publicise your company
- Connect with your customers face to face
- Demonstrate your new products
- Maximise your exposure to the Particle Physics and Astrophysics communities
- Strengthen your company's standing within the scientific community
- Recruit new staff

Location

The conference and exhibition will be held at the Royal Geographical Society, located in the South Kensington area of London (SW7 2AR).
