Silicon Quantum Information Processing 2015: Scaling up (SiQIP 2015)

11 September 2015, Murray Edwards College, Cambridge, UK

Organised by IOP BRSG: Magnetic Resonance Group

Introduction

The aim of this meeting is to bring together researchers interested in silicon-based quantum technologies and companies that could enable the large scale integration of those technologies. The meeting will revolve around the idea of integration of quantum information processing technologies and it will touch topics such as quantum coherent control, electron spin resonance, low-temperature techniques, high-frequency electrical transport, tunneling and electron microscopy and nanofabrication techniques. Moreover, the meeting will have a strong industrial emphasis with participating companies such as Hitachi, Microsoft, Global Foundries, and D-wave.

Exhibition

An exhibition of instruments, equipment and techniques will be held alongside the meeting. The exhibition is open to companies interested in promoting their products and services that could enable the development of silicon-based quantum technologies. Due to the international status of the conference and the recent UK national invest on quantum technologies the meeting we expect a attendance of more tan 50 delegates
